

Percent Union Membership WASHINGTON STATE

- Just over 20 percent of Washington's workforce is unionized – with the highest concentrations in the west.
- The high and low regional extremes are found in the non-metropolitan parts of the state: West Balance has 25.2 percent unionization and East Balance 16.6 percent.

About the State Population Survey

The Washington State Population Survey was conducted in the spring of 1998 to provide social, demographic, and economic information about Washington residents that would otherwise not be available between the 1990 and 2000 federal census years.

Responses to the survey were obtained from telephone interviews of 7,279 households that represent the state population as a whole. The survey was designed by the Office of Financial Management and conducted by the Washington State University Social and Economic Sciences Research Center.

Data from the survey, as well as a background report titled, 1998 Washington State Population Survey Data Report, are available electronically at <http://www.wa.gov/ofm/> under Population/Data, or by calling the Office of Financial Management at (360) 902-0599.